PETROGRAD, June 4 (via London).—Soldiers from the Cronstadt garrison, which recently declared its independence of the Central Government, arrived in Petrograd yesterday with the announcement that warships at Cronstadt would come to Petrograd immediately and land men to make demonstrations.

Petrograd waited for the threatened demonstrations, and as the time passed with no such incident the announcement came to be regarded by a majority as merely a boastful talk on the part of extremists acting in defiance of the orders of the youthful Anstole Lamanoff, President of the Cronstadt Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies.

The Cronstadt sailors said the demonstrations would be for the purpose of bringing about new elections of members of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies, whose present members were denounced as bourgeois.

The sailors also demanded that former Emperor Nicholas be handed over to them. At street meetings they expressed dissatisfaction with War Minister Kerezhsky and the whole Provisional Government, particularly for abolition of the death penalty, which they characterized as premature.

One report said that an attack was made yesterday by sailors from Cronstadt at Gutuyeff Island, Port of Petrograd. The Associated Press correspondent visited there and found that a vast fire had been burning for some time, having been partially extinguished.

The Provisional Government to-day named the Russian dreadnought Alexander III, as the capital "city" of the port of Cronstadt. The Provisional Government's administrative officers were ordered to meet aboard the Alexander III, for a conference.

Anstole Lamanoff, who rules Cronstadt to-day, is a beardless boy who wears the uniform of a Russian student and dreams great dreams of a Russia split up into little republics, each supreme in itself and bound together by a central authority of loose kind.

The childish ruler was a student in the chemistry department of the Petrograd Technical College before the revolution. He has appointed his own brother, Peter Lamanoff, a mere lieutenant in the army, to be supreme commander of the sailors, soldiers and marines in Cronstadt.

HERE ARE FIVE DON'T'S FOR REGISTRATION DAY BY THE U. S. MARSHAL

Don't loiter around registration places; register and go home or about your business.

Don't, if you are a woman or a person outside the age limits for registration, gather at the registration places; there is nothing there to see.

Don't use the vicinity of registration places for general conversation on any subject; there is no place anywhere to-morrow for controversy and argument.

Don't fail to report any one who tries to induce you not to register, even though it is only a hint; the honor of a man called for registry should be as sensitive as that of a jurymen.

No suspicious action is too trivial to be reported.

Don't forget that to-morrow every citizen is a watchman for the Government.

young Lamanoff, "Cronstadt's policy toward the war remains unchanged. The force is in a better defensive condition than ever, and it is not true that the men are insufficiently equipped. All the technical commands are being held by expert officers, but many high fighting commands are now held by plain soldiers, who work admirably, as the officers themselves will testify."

This youngster, coming home to Cronstadt, displayed a flaming eloquence, an enthusiasm and an energy that carried him to the Presidency of the Cronstadt Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies, and from this position to a virtual dictatorship of the city. He appears to aim at being a combination Napoleon and Jean Jacques Rousseau, and he is ruling Cronstadt with an iron hand.

Forest fires in the Minsk region have already burned over 7,000 acres, destroying 3,000,000 bushels of wheat and the big elevators at Saratoff, according to word received to-day. The fires are believed to be of incendiary origin.

The Workmen's and Soldiers' Journal, now all powerful in Petrograd, complained editorially to-day against further issuance of paper money by the Government and demanding that all war profits be confiscated by the central authority.

STUDENTS INDICED WITH FOUR OTHERS IN ANTI-DRAFT PLOT

Plead Not Guilty and Trial Is Set for Monday—Appeal for Barnard Girl.

The Federal Grand Jury this afternoon indicted the three Columbia students, one a girl of nineteen, arrested last week on the charge of obstructing the selective service law, and four men taken at Madison Square Garden on the same charge.

The indictments charge "conspiracy to violate the laws of the United States." The penalty on conviction is two years in prison or $10,000 fine.

The students who prepared and made ready to circulate anti-conscription literature are Eleanor Wilson Parker, a senior in Barnard College; Owen Cattell, whose father is a member of the Columbia faculty, and Charles Francis Phillips, son of a clothing manufacturer.

The four others indicted are Louis Kramer of No. 208 Second Avenue and Morris Becker of No. 18 West One Hundred and Seventh Street, self-confessed anarchists; Louis Sternberg of No. 24 Rutgers Street and Joseph Walker of 3 West Thirtieth Street.

The seven offenders were arraigned before Federal Judge Mayer late this afternoon.

The seven pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Federal Judge Mayer, who set next Monday for their trial, announcing the cases were to have preference over all other matters before the court.

Miss Parker's bail was continued at $1,500 at the request of her attorney, E. Bertram Samuels, who told the court the girl had been misled by older heads. Bail in the cases of Cattell and Phillips, the other students, was raised from $1,000 to $3,000.

A lawyer in court announced that Morris Hillquit, the Socialist leader, would defend the three students when they were called for trial. At this announcement Miss Parker's mother held a hurried conference with Mr. Samuels, after which the latter announced that he and no one else would represent Miss Parker. Mr. Samuels said that as the girl was a minor she had to be governed by the wishes of her parents in the matter.
